David Moore

Director

David Moore is an award-winning Scottish television and film director. He is currently directing Edith Wharton adaptation THE BUCCANEERS (Apple TV+/The Forge). Recent lead director credits include Reverend Richard Coles crime drama MURDER BEFORE EVENSONG (C5/Acorn TV/The Lighthouse) and Harlan Coben thriller FOOL ME ONCE (Netflix/Quay Street), which was the most watched series on Netflix worldwide in 2024. Other television credits include THE LAST KINGDOM (Netflix/Carnival), OUTLANDER (Starz/Tall Ship), INDIAN SUMMERS (C4/New Pictures) and MONROE (ITV/Mammoth). He also directed feature-length drama SWEENEY TODD (BBC), for which Ray Winstone won Best Actor at the Shanghai Television Festival. For his short film THE STAR (BBC/Renegade Films), he won a Scottish BAFTA Award and RTS Award. Over the course of his career, David has directed four single films and more than 70 episodes of television drama. He produced a series of MONROE and feature-length Agatha Christie adaptation ENDLESS NIGHT (Granada/ITV), which he also directed. He is a graduate of the National Film and Television School.
