Sean Spencer

Sean has directed a number of high-profile TV dramas, including BERGERAC for UKTV, THE LAZARUS PROJECT for Sky, and A TOWN CALLED MALICE for Sky. He has worked with some of the biggest UK television writers such as Joe Barton, Paul Abbott and Toby Whithouse, most recently completing work on PIERRE for The Lighthouse and CHANNEL 4, co-created by Roy Williams and John Donnelly, exec producer Hilary Salmon.
Sean's debut feature film, PANIC, a London-set thriller starring David Gyasi (The Diplomat, Interstellar, Cloud Atlas), garnered critical acclaim and 4-star reviews from publications such as The Guardian, The Daily Mirror, and The British Blacklist. Panic was also nominated for numerous festival and industry awards.
